

IN CAHOOTS

Three members of Accent theatre's cast in the forthcoming production of "Stalag 17" put their heads together during rehearsal. They are (l-r) Ed Cook, as Stosh; Lou Enrich, as Harry; and George Hodges, as Duke.

'STALAG 17' OPENS HERE APRIL 25

Accent Theatre will present "Stalag 17", on April 25, after many weeks of rehearsal with their new director, Charles Gray of Hollywood.

Torrance cast members are George P. Hodges, who plays Duke; Robert Pickett, playing the Irrepressible Marko; Bob Johnston, the Geneva Man; and Lew Truscon, the sadistic SS Captain. While this is his first acting stint, Truscon has accumulated a great deal of technical experience in theatre, radio and motion pictures. He has worked with Shelley Winters, John Hodiak, Orson Welles and Bob Kennedy.

Coming from Hermosa Beach is Ed Long, who plays the lead of Albert Sefton in this rowdy comedy.

Others in the cast are Warren Dieter, Lt. Arlie Schardt, Dennis and Joseph Cunningham and Lee Oberholzer, San Pedro; Lou Enrich, Manchester; Ed Cook, Phil Shaffer, and Ed Gangel, Manhattan Beach.

The hilarious, all-male comedy will run Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, April 25-May 18, at the newly acquired playhouse, Cabrillo ave. and El Prado. Reservations may be made by calling FA 8-2232. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Sensational NEWS NEXT WEEK About WALTERIA DRUG

Olfactory School of Literature

How does an author write a best seller? Apparently by becoming a "best smeller."

That, at least, is the word from Casimir elementary school where the "best smeller" technique is being used to help develop "independent creative writing."

Advice contained in "How to Get the Best Results from Reading" states:

"Ask pupils to note places with distinctive smells on the way to school (service station, dairy, etc.) Which places have most pleasant smells? What are some classroom smells? Church smells? Old house smells? Circus smells?"

The manual indicated that one pupil went so far as to work out a "timetable" of smells, starting with "morning smells."

The olfactory school of literature may provide a key to the quality of a number of best sellers.

MOOSE PLAN EGG HUNT APRIL 20
